C. SCHOOL SYSTEM FACING SWEEPING CHANGE

PREPARATION FOR VARSITY IS DIFFERENT

Candidates Will Not Sit for Exams But Will Be Certified

VICTORIA, Aug. 31.—The summer vacation and a week from today, thousands of British Columbia senior high school students will start work under a revised program of studies intended to place more emphasis on academic learning to more practical courses.

In the past, preparation for university graduation has dominated the senior high schools, a statement issued by the department of education said.

PRACTICAL COURSES

The new program provides many practical courses which can be given in almost any high school, and it is hoped that the schools will abandon their preparation of purely academic education and will instead inculcate the interest of future university students, will meet the needs of the community and who will never go to a university.

Under the new curriculum only a certificate of graduation will be awarded. Students entering the university, who formerly registered for matriculation, will work for a high school graduation certificate, but will choose subjects necessary for admission to the University of British Columbia.

Time work will be restricted to no more than an hour and a half daily in each of the three senior years.

SCIENCE COURSES

General science courses will require the former separate courses in physics, chemistry and biology, specialized and technical courses of science will be reserved for the university.

The general science course will be made adaptable to different courses through the provision of providing optional units in mining, agriculture, farming, horticulture, and other subjects. A course in farm mechanics will replace working as manual training in rural communities.

The courses in mathematics—algebra and geometry—will be reorganized into a new course in practical mathematics, based on mathematics actually used in the industries and communities of the province.

Compulsory courses in health and physical education will be provided in all grades. Courses in music and art will be required. Home economics and technical courses will be recognized as credits for university admission.

Long Range Seaplanes To Be Launched In Mid-Air

Problem Solved In Take-Off Big Loads

British Triad Press

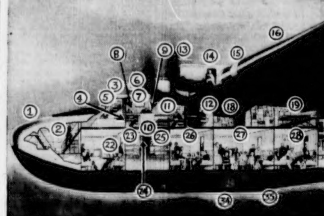

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Interest in the trials to be held in England with the composite apparatus in which a long-range seaplane is to be launched in mid-air from the wing of a large flying boat.

The composite short-haul apparatus, designed and constructed for the Air Ministry and Imperial Airways to test the principle involved in mid-air launching, takes the form of a four-engine flying boat, "Maia," and a four-engine flying boat, "Mercury."

In the trials now to be undertaken these two components will be joined together in mid-air. Then the seaplane will be attached to the top of the wing of the flying boat, and the two components will rise from the water together.

SASKATCHEWAN HARVESTING IS NEAR COMPLETE

Wheat Harvester Operations in West—20 Per Cent Still Standing

REGINA, Aug. 31.—Favorable weather prevailing during the past two weeks, rapid progress has been made with harvesting operations, according to reports received over the week-end by the statistics branch of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture.

Wheat cutting is completed in southern and eastern districts while only a very small percentage remains in central and north-western districts. In the west central district, however, cutting is not as advanced, owing to delay in the start of the season of weeds in the crop, and about twenty per cent still remains standing.

COARSE GRAINS

Coarse grains range from seventy-five to one hundred per cent completed in southern, central and eastern districts, while in the west central and north western Saskatchewan only slightly more than fifty per cent is cut.

Early in the season delay in a few places due to high wind blowing has proceeded uninterrupted and between eighty-five and ninety per cent of the wheat is threshed throughout eastern Saskatchewan with positively seventy-five per cent of the light crop in central Saskatchewan completed. Only about twenty per cent is threshed in west central and north western districts where the crop is extremely poor.

LITTLE IN NORTH

As previously reported there is little, if any, grain to be threshed in the greater portion of northern Saskatchewan. Threshing of coarse grains is well advanced in the north, but in some districts is greater than that for the whole of the province.

While comparatively little wheat has been delivered in the north, but in some districts is greater than that for the whole of the province.

OTTAWA WILL SEE ABERHART LETTER TODAY

Statement Expected Following Cabinet Session This Afternoon

OTTAWA, Aug. 31.—(Declined) by Premier William Aberhart that the Social Credit government would proceed with its banking legislation in defiance of the Dominion government order-in-council.

The prime minister will probably take Mr. Aberhart's letter to the cabinet this afternoon. In the meantime no comment has been available. Premier King was at his summer home in the Gatineau Hills today and was expected in the office until today.

BLOCKS APPEAL

A fortnight ago the federal government was ordered to disallow by authority contained in the British North America act, "new Alberta statutes designed to place control of chartered bank branches in the hands of provincial government authorities, and to curtail the right of appeal to the courts."

The appeal was to have come into operation August 27 but that date passed without any action to enforce them having been taken. It was not disclosed in Mr. Aberhart's letter where he would start proceedings in the banks, as proposed in the legislation.

STATEMENT DUE

Disavowal of a provincial statute by the federal government is an action from which there is no appeal. It is stated that the Alberta government, as suggested by the Alberta premier, has been asked to disavow the statute. It was not disclosed in Mr. Aberhart's letter where he would start proceedings in the banks, as proposed in the legislation.
